Acknowledgements

A special thanks to everyone who has submitted information for this studbook, making it possible for me to keep the data current. Without the cooperation of all the involved institutions, it would not be possible to publish an accurate summary of the Amur leopard captive population.

Sincere thanks to Diana Weinhardt and Martha Caron, previous studbook keepers, who kept the information current.

A thank you to the Erie Zoo for their support in my endeavor of this very important project.

A final thanks to Alan Shoemaker who consistently offers me support in pursuing my goal of maintaining a healthy population of Amur leopards, and also to the dedicated staff at the PMC for providing me with the valuable information that I need to make important decisions with this precarious population.

Studbook Legend

Stud#: Animal's permanent studbook number. Studbook numbers may not always be assigned chronologically, due to animals being recorded as they become known to the Studbook Keeper.

Sex: M for male, m for castrated male, F for female, cont if contracepted, neut if neutered, U for unknown sex Birth Date: Animal's birth date. A tilde mark, '~', before a date indicates that it is approximate. '??' indicates that the date is unknown.

Sire and Dam: Studbook numbers for the animal's sire and dam. 'UNK' if unknown. 'MULT' if several candidates have been identified. 'WILD' if the sire or dam was considered to be wildcaught - this animal is a founder.

Location: The institution holding the animal at the time. If the animal is no longer traceable by the Studbook Keeper, 'Itf' (lost-to-followup) will appear to the right of the last known location.

Date: The date on which the event occurred. A tilde mark, '~', before a date indicates that it is approximate. '??' indicates that the date is unknown.

Local ID: The identification assigned by the specimen's location, often its ISIS number, house number, or occasionally house name.

Event: Capture, Birth, Transfer, Loan, Ownership change, Death or Release

Identifiers: House Name, Transponder

Natural History

Identification – Also known as the Far East leopard, the Siberian leopard, the Manchurian leopard, or the Korean leopard, the Amur leopard is well adapted to the harsh climate of Primorye. The hairs of its summer pelt are 2.5 cm long, but in winter they are replaced by 7 cm long ones. The subspecies is easily distinguished by its long winter coat and large, widely spaced, unbroken rosettes. It is said to have longer legs than other leopards, perhaps as an adaptation for walking through snow. They are approximately 2 feet at the shoulders, 6-7 feet long (including the tail). They weigh between 80-150 pounds, with males typically larger than females.

Behavior – These leopards are predominately solitary and are active mainly during the night. Individuals occupy large, overlapping home ranges that vary in size depending on the abundance of prey. They are skillful hunters, stalking their prey to within a striking distance of a few meters, and feeding on a wide range of animals. They give a distinctive rasping call, rather than a growl, as their main vocalization.

Lifespan – Not much is known of the life span of wild Amur leopards, but those in captivity normally live 16 – 22 years.

Diet – Their main prey is deer (Roe and Sika), badgers, raccoon dogs, and hares.

Population – The Amur leopard is the most endangered cat, with only approximately 30 animals left in the wild. Extensive poaching and loss of habitat has led to a dramatic drop in numbers. A re-introduction program is currently in the works, which would attempt to re-establish populations in some of its former range.

Range – The Amur leopard is named for the Amur River that forms much of the border between China and Russia. In the sixties and seventies, this leopard was still found in considerable numbers in former Manchuria, the Korean peninsula, and the southern part of Primorye in the Russian Far East. Between 1970 and 1983, it lost an astonishing 80% of its former territory. Nowadays, the cat is restricted to a small patch of mountainous forest habitat in Southeast Russia along the Chinese and Korean borders.

Reproduction – Becoming sexually mature at approximately 3 years of age, the breeding season is normally in early spring and summer. Females give birth to 1 to 6 cubs after a gestation period of 90-110 days. The cubs are born in a den, blind and helpless. They are weaned at about 3 months of age, and become independent after 18 – 24 months of age.

Legal Status/Protection – Critically Endangered, CITIES Appendix 1

Executive Summary

The Felid Taxon Advisory group has designated this population a Yellow SSP and has set a target population size of 100 specimens. The current population is 106 (46.60) specimens in 47 institutions. Non-AZA institutions can participate in this SSP program. Recommendations proposed are non-binding - participation is voluntary. Dispositions to non – AZA institutions should comply with each institution's acquisition/disposition policy.

Management Strategy

With a population size of 106 specimens, only 48 animals are suitable for breeding. Fifteen animals are currently over the age of 15 years, and 14 animals have either been neutered or have not returned to breeding status after being on contraceptives. In addition, 5 animals of breeding age have been hand-raised, which negatively affects their breeding potential due to behavioral issues. The remaining animals are currently too young to breed, have health issues, or are currently at non-AZA facilities who do not wish to participate in the SSP program. All of these factors have a negative impact on the success of the breeding program. With these facts being known, it is imperative that recommended moves are initiated in a timely fashion in order to give older animals an opportunity to reproduce before they are lost to the population.

Since the majority of all female leopards have the potential of receiving breeding recommendations in this current plan or in the near future, the only form of recommended birth control for all females is separation from the male. Hand-raised females with behavioral issues that make natural breeding unlikely, and are genetically valuable, may be considered for AI. Genetically valuable hand-raised males with the same behavioral issues, may be collected for future AI attempts.

There were 6 deaths (4.2) in 2009, 6 deaths (2.4) in 2010, and 4 deaths (2.2) in 2011. There were no births recorded in 2009. Ten births (3.7) occurred in 2010, with 7 cubs (1.6) surviving. In 2011, 4 cubs (2.2) were born – all in private institutions – all survived. With this limited number of young animals in the population, we are playing catch-up to maintain a healthy, young population.

There is a potential for more imports. There was one import in 2008 (0.1), 2 imports in 2009 (2.0), and an impending import in 2012 (1.0). There is the potential of more imports in 2012 or 2013 – there are currently 2.1 animals available in Europe.

The latest breeding and transfer plan (April 2012) recommends that one animal (0.1) be exported to Canada, and 15 pairs be paired for breeding in 2012. Recommendations contained in this master plan supersede those made by earlier plans. Breeding recommendations are made with the understanding that breeding institutions will be able to hold offspring for at least two years. Attempts are being made to add more institutions to the program.

All institution requests will be evaluated on a case by case basis and every attempt will be made to conform to the needs of the institution and the population's goals. As the population changes, recommendations will be made to accommodate the needs of all involved. Institutions wishing to place or receive animals should contact the species coordinator and work together to achieve the program's goals.
