Introduction

Geographic Scope of Regional Studbook

The giant anteater North American Regional Studbook documents all giant anteaters that reside or once resided in North America. This studbook only contains one species, Myrmecophaga tridactyla. Data is current through 01 March 2013.

Taxonomy

Species authority: Linnaeus, 1758

Class: Mammalia

Superorder: Xenarthra

Order: Pilosa

Family: Myrmecophagidae

Genus: Myrmecophaga

Species: Myrmecophaga tridactyla

Common Name: giant anteater

Common local names for the giant anteater [Emmons, 1990] are:

- Oso hormiguero, tamandua de bandera (Ecuador, Peru)
- Tamandua bandiera, tamandua-acu, papa formigas (Brazil)
- Ant bear (Belize)
- Oso caballo (Costa Rica, Honduras, Panama)
- Yuru mi, tamandua (Guarani language)
- Zam hool (Mayan language)
- Tamanua (Saramaca language)
- Hormiguero gigante (Ecuador, Argentina, Nicaragua, and Venezuela)

Previous synonyms for taxonomic classification include; Rehn (1900) used Falcifer as the genus for this species. Myrmecophaga artata (Osgood, 1912); M. centralis (Lyon, 1906); M. jubata (Linnaeus, 1758). At one point a case had been made for subspecies designation based upon certain "isolated" populations. Three subspecies have been described in the IUCN Red data book: M. t. tridactyla – described as occurring from Venezuela and the Guianas to Peru, Paraguay, southern Brazil to northern Argentina; M. t. artata – described as occurring in Colombia and western Venezuela; M. t. centralis- described as a Central American subspecies which once ranged from Belize southward along the Caribbean coast to Colombia and up the Pacific Coast to Guatemala, however, reports indicate that this subspecies may have disappeared [IUCN , 1982]. Presently there is a single taxonomic designation Myrmecophaga tridactyla [Linnaeus, 1758].

Natural History

Description

The Superorder Xenarthra includes 5 families, 13 genera, and 29 species [Wetzel, 1985a and 1985b; Honacki et al, 1982].

Family- Dasypodidae – armadillos

8 genera

19 species

Family- Bradypodidae – three toed sloths

1 genera

4 species

Family- Megalonychidae – two toed sloths

1 genera

2 species

Family Cyclopedidae – silky anteaters

1 genera

1 species

Family Myrmecophagidae – anteaters

2 genera

3 species

Xenarthra (Greek) means “strange joints” because their vertebral joints have extra articulations and are unlike those of any other mammal. For general purposes, Xenarthrans may be grouped as anteaters, sloths and armadillos. All but the nine-banded armadillo, Dasypus novemcinctus, are restricted to the neotropics, and are found from Mexico through Central and South America.

Myrmeco- means “ant” and phages means “eater” (both Greek). The species name means three (tri) fingers (dactyls). Myrmecophagidae is one of only two taxa of mammals without any teeth (Manidae comprises the other).

Coloration on the giant anteater varies quite a bit, though the same general patterns are found throughout the species. The main differences within the species lie in the anteater's main hair color - some individuals are mostly brown while others are mostly grey. On all giant anteaters, a large black stripe radiates from beneath the snout out to about mid-torso. This black stripe is surrounded by a thin outline of white, light grey or light brown, which covers both front paws. Near the base of the front paws, a black ring can usually be found as well. The giant anteater's distinct color patterning may add to the camouflaging of the animal, especially in forested areas.

Anteaters have elongated, tapered snouts and tubular mouths. The long tongue has minute posteriorly directed spines (filiform papillae) and is covered with a sticky secretion from the large salivary glands. The salivary glands appear to secrete only when the animal is feeding. The tongue can be extended as much as 610 mm ( $\approx$ 24 inches), but its diameter is only 10 –15 mm (1/2 inch) at the widest point, just outside the mouth [Nowak, 1999].

Adult body weights vary between 29.5 to 63.6 kilograms (65 to 140 pounds). Captive born animals seem to be larger as adults than their wild counterparts. Normal captive birth weight is around 1100 grams plus or minus 200 grams. A normal weight drop of up to 150 grams may occur over the first two to three days before weight gain is noticed [Flint, 1997].

Anatomic peculiarities

Anteaters maintain a low body temperature between 30-35°C (86-95°F) [McNab, 1985]. Males have intra-abdominal testes which are found between the rectum and urinary bladder [Nowak 1999]. The relatively low body temperature probably assists in maintaining viable sperm. All Xenarthrans have double caudal vena cava that returns blood from the posterior part of the body to the heart, whereas most other mammals possess a single vessel [Nowak, 1999]. Females have a common urinary and genital duct

Distribution and Habitat

Early Pleistocene fossil evidence indicated a historical range for the giant anteater extending approximately 3,000 km north of their present neotropical range, to northwest Sonora Mexico [Shaw and McDonald, 1987]. Present distribution of the giant anteater is from Central America south of Belize through Brazil to north Argentina. The western extreme of the distribution is limited by the Andes mountain chain. Currently, giant anteaters are thought to be extinct in Guatemala and their presence is uncertain in Belize. Typical habitat is savannah grasslands and open forests containing sandy soil with numerous termite and ant nests.

Biology

Wild giant anteaters are normally solitary, except for mothers and their offspring. Giant anteaters lack a clearly defined territorial system and home ranges may overlap in areas of high population density. Individuals occupy an area of between 2 and 12 km<sup>2</sup>. [Shaw et al. 1987]. Although generally considered terrestrial, giant anteaters are capable of climbing as adults [Rummel, 1988; Shaw et al.; Wildholzer and Voss, 1978]. Giant anteaters are noted to be good swimmers.

Diet

Giant anteaters eat ants, termites and soft-bodied grubs. It is also noted that they will readily eat eggs, injured or dead animals and a variety of fruits. Using the long, sharp claws on their forelimbs, they open insect colonies and tree trunks. They use their tongue to collect the eggs, larvae and adult insects. The tongue is attached to the sternum and moved very quickly, flicking 150 times per minute. They only stay at one colony for a short period of time, as they are susceptible to ant bites especially around the nose, eyes and ears. Giant anteaters can eat up to 30,000 insects in a single day. Captive diets vary but typically contain a mix of high fiber pellets, domestic dog or cat chow and fruit. Specific insectivore diets are also available.

Breeding

During the mating season, the male anteater follows the scent of a female in estrus. He approaches the female, puts his head on her back and gently pulls her over to lie on her side. The male mounts in a squatting fashion while making pelvic thrusts. Several reports describe mutual clicking and manipulation with the claws of the forefeet while in this dorso-lateral position [Gradillas and Bongratz, 1997]. Females normally give birth to a single young after approximately 175 days gestation. The range of gestation period in literature is reported to be 142 days [Merrett, 1983] to 190 days [Asdell, 1964]. Neonates must be able to climb onto the dam from birth. By clutching long hairs along the dam's back, young are transported for up to 10 months. Neonates are capable of giving rather loud, bleating alarm calls, particularly when abandoned or when under duress. Multiple births are rare but have been reported. The London Zoo had a multiple birth on 19 January 2000. The infants were supplemented bottle fed but otherwise were cared for by their mother until they were so big only one could ride on her at a time. The North American population has recorded three multiple births. The most recent twins were born at Fresno Chaffee Zoo on June 20, 2011. Both infants were separated from their mother at birth and hand raised. One infant survived and has since been transferred to the Santa Barbara Zoo.

Longevity and Productivity

Giant anteaters can live for approximately 15 years in the wild and average 20 –25 years in captivity. The oldest male in the studbook died at approximately 28 ½ years of age while at Fresno Chaffee Zoo. The oldest female died at approximately 31 years of age while at Santa Barbara Zoo. Currently, the Phoenix Zoo has the oldest living male (#253) at approximately 24 years of age and Reid Park Zoo (Tucson) has the oldest living female (#218) at approximately 29 years of age. Births have been recorded in North American collections in every month of the year. Sexual maturity in captive born giant anteater is about four years of age. The youngest female to give birth was one year, seven months and the youngest male to sire an offspring was one year of age. The oldest female to give birth was approximately twenty-five years old and the oldest male to sire was approximately twenty-seven years old.

Conservation Status

Pressures on wild populations have been reported to be due to hunting and traditional agricultural practices [IUCN, 1982]. They are increasingly killed in vehicle accidents and they are hunted for food, fur and sport. Biologists in Brazil indicate that wildfires, whether man-made or naturally caused, are a rampant and unpredictable threat to wild populations throughout their range [Flint, 1997]. Giant anteaters are listed in Appendix II by the Convention of International Trade of Endangered Species (CITES)- ‘trade in the animal must be controlled’. They are listed as Near Threatened [Porini, 2009] by the International Union for the Conservation of Nature (IUCN) Red List- ‘due to the knowledge of large declines in much of its range, although the actual rate is difficult to estimate’.

Captive Population History

The historical studbook contains 583 specimens (214.285.76). Studbook numbers (119, 165, 278, 326, 334, 472, 500, 546) have been deleted from the studbook. The living studbook contains 112 specimens (53.57.3) currently housed in 46 institutions. The data is current through 01 March 2013. The first recorded importation of the giant anteater in North America was in 1880. The Philadelphia Zoo received their first female giant anteater on May 6, 1880. Unfortunately, many of the giant anteaters imported into North American collections fared poorly. It was not for sixty years that any giant anteaters survived beyond two years in captivity. The first recorded captive birth known to the studbook occurred at Detroit Zoo on April 12, 1951.

Under the auspices of the Association of Zoos and Aquariums (AZA), this species is currently identified for Species Survival Plan (SSP) status, coordinated by the Pangolin, Aardvark, and Xenarthran Taxon Advisory Group (PAX TAG).

Studbook changes since last publication (January 2010)

- Historical studbook specimens increased from 562 to 583 (6.12.3)
- Living studbook specimens increased from 102 to 113 (5.5.1) in the AZA population
  - 18 (5.10.3) total birth events
  - 15 (5.9.1) current living births
  - 22 (10.12) transfers
  - 13 (3.9.1) deaths
  - = Total living population (53.56.3)
- Please note that international studbook numbers have a leading zero. Please include the zero when recording (intstudno) numbers on specimen/taxon reports. ## Data Field Descriptions

The Giant Anteater Studbook uses the Single Population Animal Record Keeping System (SPARKS) program, version 1.5

Stud #:

A number assigned to each animal in the studbook. Each institution should enter the studbook number into ARKS for all animals that they have or have held.

Sex:

“M”=male, “m”=contracepted male, “F”=female, “f”=contracepted female, “?”=unknown or unverified

Birth Date:

Wild caught animals with an unknown birth date are assigned “????”. Estimated birth dates are indicated using a “~” symbol in front of the year or month/year.

Sire/Dam:

“WILD” indicates that the animal was wild caught and its parents were unknown individuals.

“UNK” indicates that the animal was captive born and its parents were unknown captive individuals.

“MULT” indicates that the animal has more than one possible parent

Location:

This field documents movements of individual animals from the first location to the current or last known location. “UNKNOWN” indicates that the animal exists or existed but its location has not been confirmed. A complete listing of all the location abbreviations may be found under the Location Glossary section. Animals assumed wild caught but with no birth location listed were given S.America as the place of origin.

Date:

This field documents when the above “Location” moves took place. “????” indicates no information was provided or available.

Local ID:

This is the animals assigned ISIS number at a specific location. “NONE” indicates no information was provided or available. The letters “lrf” refer to an animal that is “lost to follow-up”. An animal is “lrf” when it’s final disposition is unknown.

Event: Describes the purpose for moving from location to location

Name:

House names for individuals. The most recent name given to the animal is listed.

Intl sb#: A number assigned to an animal within the international studbook. Presently, this studbook is maintained by Ilona Schappert at Zoo Dortmund, Germany.

Conventions

Birth dates for wild caught animals are left as “unknown” unless the holding institution provided an estimated year of birth.

Wild caught animals that were listed as “unknown” as the place of capture were given S. America (South America) as a place of origin.

Date of capture for a wild animal was left as unknown, unless the exact date was provided.

Studbook number 84 – captive birth with no dam information provided

MULT1 - multiple dams at location (San Diego Zoo) at time of birth, #456, #468

Studbook number 477 – captive birth with no dam information provided

MULT1- multiple dams at location (San Diego Zoo) at time of birth, #456, #468

Studbook number 359 – captive birth with no dam information provided

MULT2 – multiple dams at location (Kansascity) at time of birth, #142, #152
