INTRODUCTION AND STUDBOOK SUMMARY

Introduction

This is the seventh edition of the North American Regional Studbook for red river hog (Potamochoerus porcus). This edition documents a 110 year history (historical and current) of the red river hog population in North America from 1902 to 2012. Studbook numbers are ordered chronologically by date of birth. The last column in the studbook report, with the heading ISBN, refers to the individuals' International Studbook Number.

Individuals that are related to individuals in North America, but reside in Europe or South Africa have been included in the studbook so that the North American bloodlines can be tracked.

The International Studbook for the red river hog is being maintained by Dr. Jochen Reiter, Curator of Mammals, at the Duisburg Zoo in Germany.

Studbook Summary

As of 31 December 2012 the living population of red river hogs in North America was 183 (91.92) in 56 institutions. This is an increase of 11 animals and 13 new institutions since last year. Four institutions phased out their red river hogs during this time: Mountain View Conservation Center, Naples Zoo, BA Ranch, and Tennessee Safari Park.

This population continues to grow and should meet the available spaces that were indicated by the WPPHAG 2005 Space Survey, which revealed that by 2008 there would be 183 spaces available for red river hogs and that between 2008 and 2010 there will be 190 spaces available within the AZA community. Red river hogs continue to be very popular among the zoological institutions in North America.

A total of 83 (38.39.6) births took place between 1 Sep 2009 and 31 Dec 2012. Of these 83 births, 8 (3.1.4) did not survive more than 1 day. Fourteen of the births were from 4 recommended pairs. The remaining 14 births were from non-recommended sibling pairs.

Of significance to the population is the continued lack of reproduction from the Wild Caught male and female at Tampa's Lowry Park Zoo. Neither of these animals have yet to produce any offspring. The PMP made the reproduction of these two animals the highest priority for the population in 2010. The male was moved from Dallas to Lowry Park in Jan 2010.

The population experienced a total of 44 (20.18.6) deaths of which thirteen were considered neonatal deaths. Three of these were significant deaths for the population. The male imported from Duisburg, Germany in 1995 died at the Memphis Zoo in Nov 2010. He sired 13 litters while at San Diego and Memphis. A Wild Caught male imported to San Diego in 1998 died in Dec 2012, having produced 7 litters. A captive-bred male imported from Pretoria in 2000 died in May 2011, having never bred. In addition, two transportation deaths were reported.

A total of 95 transfers took place between September 2009 and December 2012 with 13 new institutions coming on line, 8 of which are AZA members and 5 of which are Non-AZA members. The new institutions include African Lion Safari in Canada, Wildlife World, Zoological Center at Lionshare Farm, the Smithsonian National Zoological Park, Busch Gardens, Micanopy Zoological Preserve, Lincoln Park Zoo, Minnesota Zoo, African Safari Wildlife Park, Philadelphia Zoo, Roger Williams Park Zoo, Fort Worth Zoo, and Virginia Safari Park.

The current population is descended from eight founders with two potential founders remaining (SB# 46 and SB# 68 @ Lowry Park). The current gene diversity for this population is 82%, equivalent to that of only between two and three unrelated animals. The low gene diversity in this population is due mainly to inequality of founder representation, as most breeding has been attributable to the Duisburg founders (SB# 9 and SB# 10) and their descendants. The potential gene diversity is much higher at 95% if more offspring are produced from the Wild Caught animals.

The age of the captive population is well distributed with very few elderly animals, the oldest a 16 year old male at Micanopy and a 17 year old female at Binder Park. There are a total of 37 animals that range from age 9-17 years. 79 animals range in age from 4-8 years and 67 animals range in age from 0-3 years.

Reproduction in the population has been improving over the years. The median age of females at first reproduction is about 4 years old and the median age of females at reproduction is about 6 years.

The oldest female to give birth for the first time was 11 years old and the youngest to successfully give birth for the first time was 1 year 10 months. Several females have given birth at the age of 11, 3 females have given birth at age 12 and 2 gave birth at age 13.

Males have sired offspring as young as 1 year 7 months and as old as 17 years. Similar to the females the median age of males to sire offspring for the first time is about 4 years.

Births have taken place in every month except February. The vast majority (88%) of the births take place between March and August.

Efforts will continue to focus on having the remaining two potential founders reproduce and reduce effect of the number of offspring from the Duisburg stock animals. Animals have also been identified for the European population in an effort to assist our European colleagues with maintaining a genetically healthy population in Europe as well.

STATUS IN THE WILD

The following information has been taken from the IUCN Red List Assessment for 2008. This information can be accessed at www.iucnredlist.org

Listed as Least Concern as the species is relatively widespread, common, and there are no major threats believed to be resulting in a significant population decline. However, hunting has led to localized declines in some parts of its range, so populations should be monitored carefully.

The Red River Hog is widely, but patchily, distributed through the West and Central African rainforest belt, from Senegal in the west, throughout the Guinea-Congo forest to at least west of the Albertine Rift. Further east and south-east, replaced by the Bushpig, although the precise borders between the ranges of the two species remain unclear. There are no confirmed records from Sudan or Chad, though they may occur in extreme south-western Sudan (Leus and Vercaemmen in press). There are also as yet no reliable records from The Gambia, which is just outside their natural range (Grubb et al. 1998). There is no confirmation of their presence on Bioko Island.

The main threat to this species is hunting for subsistence purposes, as an agricultural pest, or because it is a vector of livestock diseases, and for the commercial bushmeat trade (Vercammen et al. 1993). Together with the duikers, it is one of the most hunted species in the Congo Basin (Wilkie and Carpenter 1999). A significant effect of hunting on Red River Hog densities was observed in southern Gabon (Laurance et al. 2006).
