Studbook Description

The AZA Felid Taxon Advisory Group (T.A.G.) has placed a breeding moratorium on this species and would like to see the total captive population maintained at a target population of 130 animals (excluding P.c.coryi). These will be held for educational and research purposes as well as species representatives in zoogeographical exhibits.

Present distribution of wild population

Presently pumas occupy only about a third of their previous range in the United States and are absent from much of eastern Canada as well as the central and eastern United States. Scattered remnants of the former population are located in Florida and recently are showing up in several other eastern states where they were thought to be extinct. In the western United States and Canada this cat is quite prolific. It is still persecuted in countries of South America and is becoming difficult to find in others (Green, 1991).

Habitat

The puma is found in montane coniferous forests, lowland tropical rainforest, swamps, grasslands and bush, up to an altitude of 14,800 feet (4,500 meters) (Kitchener, 1991). In many parts of South America it occurs at sea level but it has also been recorded on Mount Pichincah in the Equatorial Andes (Gggisberg, 1975). These cats exist any place that offers them sufficient prey and adequate cover. About the only type of terrain it actively shuns is desert (Lindzey 1987, Seidensticker 1991b).

Status of the North American Captive Population

Introduction: The current Puma population current to 5 January 2012 consists of 125 individuals (57.68.0) distributed among 57 AZA and 2 non-AZA institutions. The Felid Taxon Advisory Group designated the puma population as a PMP with a target size of 120 (2009 Regional Collection Plan). The TAG has also recommended that no zoo breeding take place as replacement animals are available through the rescue network. The population currently qualifies as a Yellow SSP Program.

Comprehensive demographic analyses of the North American Regional Puma Studbook (current to 5 January 2012) were performed on 13 February 2012 using PopLink 2.3, and PM2000 1.213 software. Genetic analyses were carried out also for theoretical reasons only; since this is a non-breeding population, complete genetic analyses were not necessary.

Analytical Population: The puma SSP population has a pedigree that is approximately 67% known. No assumptions were created to complete this pedigree. For theoretical reasons, genetic analyses were carried out on the potentially breeding population consisting of 46 (17.29) animals. Animals that are neutered/sterile, females over the age of 12 years, older males housed alone, animals identified as the Florida panther subspecies, and animals with unknown pedigree were not included as part of the potentially breeding population (Appendix C).

Demography: Based on the Regional studbook pumas first appeared in North American zoos back in 1874 and zoo breeding first occurred in 1892; however it was not until around 1940 that zoo breeding became more common (Figure 1). The population really took off in the 1960s, finally leveling off in the late 1970s. The breeding moratorium was put in place in the late 1990s, and the subsequent decline is apparently in the census graph. Today, wild born animals make up the majority of the population. Over the past 5 years however overall growth has been negative ($\lambda=0.989$ for total population; $\lambda=0.951$ for zoo births only).

The age structure of the total population (Figure 2, left) approximates a stable distribution with a robust shape and large number of animals. While breeding is not recommended in this population at this time, institutional needs are being filled by rescue animals, which for the most part are young cubs. These rescue animals have thus helped to maintain a balanced, stable age structure, similar to that which would be accomplished through zoo breeding. That said, should breeding ever be recommended in the population again, the majority of the population is not breedable due to their being neutered, age or unknown origin/pedigree. For this reason the potentially breeding population (Figure 2, right) assumes a less stable structure.

With the breeding moratorium in place in recent times (approximately the last 17 years) and thus basing our demographic analyses on historical studbook data with many likely inaccuracies, our life tables may not perfectly reflect the demography of the species. For this reason, the opinion of the SSP Coordinator may be a better source of information in some cases. Thus the life tables have been corrected where necessary to reflect the opinion and experience of the SSP Coordinator (Appendix D). First year mortality is 36% for males and 33% for females. Male and female longevity is thought not to be much more than 20 years; with male breeding up until old age and females breeding up until about 12 years. Males start breeding as young as one year, females soon after (1.5 – 2 years). Litter size is typically 1-4 cubs.

For more detailed demographic and genetic population information, see the most current Population Analysis and Breeding Plan for Puma concolor, produced annually and available on the AZA website. This document was produced by Cara Groome Bryan, Population Management Center, Lincoln Park Zoo.

GENERAL INFORMATION ABOUT THE 2012 Puma STUDBOOK UPDATE

A. Geographic Scope of Studbook Update:

This report contains information on 2229 Pumas belonging to, or once belonging to:

1 Association of Zoos and Aquariums (AZA) Participating Institutions -These are institutions that have met the accreditation standards of AZA and, through AZA's Full Member Participation Process, participate in the Puma PMP.

2 AZA Non-Member Participating Institutions - These are institutions that are not, or have chosen not to be, accredited by the AZA. However, through an application process, they have been approved to participate in the Puma PMP.

3 Non-AZA Institutions and Private Holders - These are institutions and individuals who are not, or have chosen not to be, accredited by AZA. Additionally, they have not been given and/or have not applied for non-AZA member participation status, however they have agreed to share their collection information with the Puma PMP.

All Pumas managed by the Puma PMP are either AZA or AZA Non-Member Participating Institutions. No PMP recommendations are made for animals held by Non-AZA institutions or Private Holders. All of the holders of Pumas listed in this studbook are located in the United States or Canada.

B. Time Scale:

The data set presented in this Studbook Update is current through 4 April 2012.

C. Description of Data Fields:

Stud # - a number assigned to each animal in the studbook. Note: numbers are not assigned chronologically by age.

Sex - "M" = male, "F" = female, "?" = unknown/unverified.

Birth Date - Many wild caught animals have estimated birth dates and these are indicated using a "♀" symbol in front of the date. For animals of unknown birth day, but known birth month the date is estimated at the 15th of the month. For animals of unknown birth date 1 July and the known year of birth is used as an estimator.

Sire/Dam - "WILD" indicates that the Studbook animal was wild caught and its parents were unknown free-ranging individuals. "UNK" indicates that the Studbook animal was captive born, outside of North America, and its parents are unknown captive individuals or that its parents are simply unknown or not recorded. "MULT" is used for animals where the true sire, one of two individuals, has not been conclusively established.

Location - This field documents movement of the individual animals from its first location to its current or last known location. "UNKNOWN" indicates that the animal exists or existed but its location has not been confirmed. A complete listing of all location abbreviations may be found under the Institutional Listing section.

Date - The field documents when the above "Location" events took place. "____" indicates no information was provided.

Local ID - This is an important whorl in the animal's fingerprint and is included in the Studbook when it is provided.

Event - Describes significant changes in the life of the animal including "birth" and "transfer." Ownership and loans are not recorded in the studbook

Name - House names of the individuals. Several cougars have been given more than one house name as they move from facility to facility.
